The truth is, the Emperor is disappointed at the turn political affairs have taken in Norway, especially as he is an admirer of King Oscar and consequently feels it would be improper for him to visit the Norwegian coast exclusively, as his trip during a conference last Monday with Prince Hohenlohe, the Chancellor, Freiherr von Bismarck, the Minister of Foreign Affairs, and Herr von Lucanus, the chief of the Emperor's civil cabinet, the above points were fully considered and resulted in the decision to make a coasting trip along the shores of Sweden and to pay a visit to Stockholm, Malmö, Gothenburg and a number of points remarkable for their scenery. His Majesty will be the guest of King Oscar at Stockholm where various court fetes have been planned in his honor. An interesting incident has just become known and it is one which will undoubtedly tend to make Emperor William more popular among the working classes. In riding to the Temple Hotel field on Tuesday to conduct the drill and maneuvers of the Second Regiment of foot guards, his Majesty noticed a laborer with a little crippled boy. The Emperor called to the laborer and questioned him regarding the boy. As a result his Majesty gave orders for two artificial legs to be made at his expense for the boy and directed his physician, Dr. Barthold, to look after the child. It is a kindly action as is reported from Kassel, East Prussia, the beneficiary being a crippled sewing girl.

The great military memorial fete planned to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the battle of Sedan, which took place August, 1870, is now being organized. It will take place at Frankfurt-on-the-Oder, the memorial erected in honor of Frederick Charles of Prussia. The Emperor has given orders for the fete to be a grand one, and it is expected that it will attract thousands of German veterans to the battlefields of Alsace-Lorraine during the summer.

COSTA RICA AT PEACE.

President Yglesias Reads His Message at the Assembling of Congress.

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, May 11.—The national Congress met to-day in regular session. Contrary to the customs of the country, which are the same that prevail in the United States, the President of the republic read his message in person. This action, at a time when the public excitement incident to the assembling of Congress was greatly enhanced by reason of the serious events in Nicaragua, claimed unusual attention and drew a concourse of people. President Yglesias is a young man with an attractive and commanding presence and he gave to his words such expression and meaning that he elicited applause that often interrupted him. He said the public order was perfect and has been so maintained continuously owing to the law-abiding proclivities of the Costa Ricans, their devotion to work and their love of a peaceful existence, to the prudent conduct of the different political circles and to the spirit of conciliation and legality in which the government has always sought inspiration for foreign relations. He said that the most perfect harmony rules the friendly relations which Costa Rica cultivates with other nations; that to maintain and insure this beneficial and flattering situation the government has endeavored with earnest solicitude to preserve the principles of the law of nations and has been ready to submit to any demonstration of international courtesy.

The President reports in detail to Congress the course of the negotiations with Nicaragua and England, and concludes as follows: "Since the notice of the ultimatum to the government of Nicaragua, the government of Costa Rica, well informed of the trend of events, gladly offered, giving ear to sentiments of mutual sympathy and to prevent more disagreeable consequences to the republic, its elder and friend, to assist in an amicable manner in the settlement of that painful situation. As a prudent means and one offering an attainment of this end, and at the suggestion of the President of the republic of Honduras, this government initiated the idea of the Central American states paying pro rata the sum of $15,000 demanded by the English government, thereby securing the evacuation of the port and bay of Corinto by the squadron there being, and the amicable settlement through diplomatic channels of the remaining conditions demanded in the ultimatum. The governments of Honduras and Salvador have accepted these practical means of adjustment, and the concurrence of the government of Guatemala is awaited, which latter had previously proposed to the other states of Central America the idea of obtaining the necessary to establish a legation of that country in Nicaragua, which would be a friendly mediation in these difficult negotiations, and in this connection, from La Gaceta, official, says: "The interest which all Central America has in having any of her republics from the consequences of a conflict with other nations imposes the non-negotiable obligation of striving every effort to the settlement of the dispute, and, therefore, the government of this republic did not waver in asking the assistance to which all nations are entitled that high body in granting it, making itself the interpreter of public opinion."

It cannot be recalled in view of the noble spirit of the people and government of Costa Rica, that the last state to withdraw from the republic of Central America.

French Abbe Killed by a Woman.
PARIS, May 11.—The Abbe de Broglie, a brother of the Duc de Broglie, was murdered to-day by a woman named Amelot. The Abbe, it appears, had been the confessor of the woman and she seems to have labored under the delusion that he had calumniated her. She called on him and demanded a written statement of the alleged calumnies. When the Abbe declined to grant her request, she drew a revolver, fired four times at the priest and killed him. She then went to a priest at the Eglise de St. Germain, confessed her crime and begged for absolution. Afterwards the woman went to a police office, confessed the murder and was arrested.
